22

23 To THE HONORABLE Claudia Wilken, United States District Judge: 24
25 On the grounds and authorities set forth below, counsel for Petitioner 26 Brandee Tripp respectfully OPPOSES the Governor's motion to dismiss the 27 habeas corpus petition.

28 The Governor avers that Petitioner failed to exhaust state court remedies because (1) she did not use the word "federal" or cite the Constitution in the state courts, (2) her due process claim that the Governor's decision flunks the some evidence test and was based on incorrect facts was not fairly presented to the state courts, and (3) her due process claim that the Governor failed to suggest a nexus between the immutable facts of her commitment offenses and

1 and argued that that the Governor's decision flunked the some evidence test
2 prescribed by the Supreme Court in Superintendent v. Hill (1985) 472 U.S. 445
3 (1985). Petitioner cited these Supreme Court cases and a plethora of Ninth 4 Circuit cases to support her due process claims, all of which are based on the 5 Federal Constitution. Biggs v. Terhune (9th Cir. 2003) 334 F.3d 910; Irons v.
6 Carey (9th Cir. 2007) 479 F.3d 658; McQuillion v. Duncan (9th Cir. 2002) 306
7 F.3d 895; Sass v. Cal. Board Of Prison Terms (9th Cir. 2006) 461 F.3d 1123.
8 See Respondent's exhibit 1, pp. 25, 29, 32-40.

9 Whether Ms. Tripp employed the word "federal" is irrelevant because 10 her argument consistently invoked the protection of due process and her 11 federally protected liberty interest prescribed by the Supreme Court based on 12 the Due Process Clause of the Federal Constitution. She fully raised every 13 claim in the petition at bench in her petition to the California Supreme Court, 14 the State's highest Court, in nearly verbatim language and based each claim on 15 abundant federal authorities. It cannot be tenably argued that her claims raised 16 in the California Supreme Court were not presented in constitutional terms.

17 To satisfy the exhaustion requirement of § 2254, a state habeas petitioner 18 must have fairly presented the substance of her federal claim to the state courts.
19 Picard v. Connor, 404 U.S. 270, 277-78 (1971) [“Picard”]. The purpose of 20 this “fair presentation” requirement is to “provide the state courts with a ‘fair 21 opportunity’ to apply controlling legal principles to the facts bearing upon his 22 constitutional claim.” Anderson v. Harless, 459 U.S. 4, 6 (1982) (quoting 23 Picard, 404 U.S. at 276-77), i.e., to give the State the opportunity to pass upon 24 and to correct alleged violations of its prisoners' federal rights.”” Lyons v.
25 Crawford, 232 F.3d 666, 668 (9th Cir. 2000), as amended, 247 F.3d 904 (9th 26 Cir. 2001) (quoting Duncan v. Henry, 513 U.S. 364, 365 (1995)).

For purposes of exhausting state remedies, a claim for relief in a federal habeas court “must include reference to a specific federal constitutional guarantee, as well as a statement of the facts that entitle the petitioner to relief.” Picard, 404 U.S. at 277-278 (1971); see Gray v. Netherland, 518 U.S. 152, 162-163 (1996); Brodsky v. Kane, 2007 WL 120829 (N.D. Cal. 2007). It is sufficient if the petitioner has presented the state courts with the “operative facts and legal theory upon which his claim is based.” Tamapua v. Shimoda, 796 F.2d 261, 262 (9th Cir. 1986).

9 Based on the foregoing Supreme Court and Ninth Circuit authorities, 10 because (1) the Governor does not allege that Ms. Tripp failed to present the 11 California Supreme Court with the “operative facts” supporting any of her 12 constitutional claims, (2) she indisputably based each such claim upon “a 13 specific constitutional guarantee,” e.g., due process and her federally protected 14 liberty interest in parole, and fully set forth the “legal theory” upon which each 15 of her claims was based, and (3) she presented her claims to this Court in the 16 same, almost verbatim language asserted in the California Supreme Court 17 petition, the exhaustion requirement has been met for each claim.

18 Accordingly, Petitioner respectfully suggests that the Governor's motion 19 to dismiss the Petition be DENIED.

20 Dated March 20, 2008

Respectfully submitted,

Adrian T. Woodward
Counsel for Petitioner
Brandee Tripp
